

1st Annual BIMODAL Workshop

Belonging in Media: Opportunities in Digital Academic Landscapes

BELONGING IN MEDIA

OPPORTUNITIES IN DIGITAL ACADEMIC LANDSCAPES

When and Where:

August 27th at the Marine Science Center, Nahant, MA and August 29th at Boston Campus

How to apply: <https://forms.gle/NGBTN2TUW7A4AQJv5>

What is it??

An inclusive workshop for STEM students of marginalized identities that are interested in building their academic digital presence before the next stage in their careers, designed and led by COS graduate students. Lunch and transportation from Wonderland T stop (blue line) to the MSC will be provided!

By the end of the workshop, you will be able to have:

- Built Your Personal Academic Website
- For social media and websites, headshots and academic “action shots” as seen in this flyer!
- Learn more about academic writing for general audiences through social media posts and/or personal blogs
- Most importantly, build and grow community with like-minded scientists in person and online

Workshop Facilitators: (Left to Right)

Lindsey Forg (they/them; ESP grad student), Angela Jones (she/her; MES PhD Student), and Madeline Eppley (they/them; MES PhD Candidate).

Workshop Environment:

It is very important to us to facilitate a welcoming environment. For example, the headshots are meant to incorporate your identity and to help folks shine across body sizes, shapes, gender identities, religions, neurodiversities, and physical disabilities. We are all STEM and should have an environment where we can feel comfortable and in community!
